The discovery of PFA's talent by Pat Robertson, the host of the 700 Club, has caused quite a buzz in the art world. The renowned artist, who has been creating beautiful pieces for over 20 years, was approached by Robertson himself to create these magnificent paintings for the church. The decision to choose PFA was based on their exceptional attention to detail and ability to capture the essence of the original paintings.

I was delighted to learn you have a really fine artist in Italy who can do a high-class copying job for me on the Rubens. I will give you some exact dimensions for my wall.”

The PFA team worked tirelessly to gather references and materials on the selected paintings, ensuring that every brushstroke was a true representation of the original masterpieces. The result is two breathtaking paintings that will now adorn the walls of the 700 Club's chapel, providing a source of inspiration and reflection for all who visit.
