

Bergman Jewelers Closing Its Doors Forever After 137 Years

Omaha's Oldest Retail Store Bids Farewell with a Historic Retirement & Going Out of Business Sale

OMAHA, NE, UNITED STATES, March 27, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- After an astounding 137 years in business, Bergman Jewelers—Omaha's oldest retail store—is closing its doors forever. This marks the end of a six-generation legacy that has served the community with timeless craftsmanship and exceptional service.

Larry Gilinsky and his daughter-in-law, Patty Gilinsky, are both retiring, and to commemorate this milestone, Bergman Jewelers is hosting a massive Retirement & Going Out of Business Sale. Customers can take advantage of unprecedented discounts—up to 70% OFF storewide on fine jewelry, designer pieces, and luxury gifts.

A Historic Legacy Comes to an End

Bergman Jewelers' story began in 1884 when Sol Bergman arrived in Omaha, drawn by its vibrant community and business opportunities. He established what would become Omaha's longest-standing retail store, passing it down through six generations. Sol's son Clarence Bergman, followed by Stewart Gilinsky, and then Larry Gilinsky, carried forward this cherished family tradition.

Now, after 65 years of helping customers celebrate life's special moments, Larry and Patty Gilinsky are officially retiring, and Bergman Jewelers will close its doors permanently. "It has been an honor to serve the people of Omaha for all these years," said Larry Gilinsky. "Thank you for
