Hal Pollock, Founder, Esquire Records

announce the launch of personalized song plaques and prints, showcasing lyrics from its renowned catalog and the upcoming songbook, Set the World to Music. Esquire Records lyricist reflects on "In Your Arms": "Shortly after I began writing song lyrics, I woke up one morning and told my wife, Susan, that I was going to write her the most beautiful song of all time. I knew immediately that the title had to be 'In Your Arms.' That same day, the lyrics came to life. Tony Bodanza, a talented Cleveland songwriter, composed the music, and Bob Pelander of The Michael Stanley Band arranged it. Cleveland vocalist Jennifer Lee later brought the song to life with her stunning performance."

Future Memories
By Hal Pollock

It's a perfect day
A perfect day to stroll the Champs-Élysées today
And I know that I have found the perfect way
For I am seeing it with you

And we'll make memories
And we'll remember them for centuries this way
For they will be our future memories
These memories we're making here today
For it was here we fell in love
And I have never loved this way before today
And I will love you till the stars all fade away
And know our love will stay

And on this perfect day
As lovers walk along the avenue
I'm never looking at the city view
For I see only you

And on this perfect day
My only dream is that I'll always be with you
Share all my future memories with only you
These memories we make today

No matter what may come to be
Whatever should become of you and me one day
These memories we share will always be
My memories of you
