Randolph, MA is a seller's market in February 2025, which means that there are more people looking to buy than there are homes available.

"Real Estate has been very rewarding over the last 40 years and I am so proud of all the families I have been able to help sell their home or find their dream home in the surrounding communities"."

Nancy Miles

On average, homes in Randolph, MA sell after 22 days on the market. The trend for median days on market in Randolph, MA has gone down since last month, and slightly up since last year.

Mrs. Miles indicated she is seeing greater sales activity so far in 2025 due to interest rates dropping and the inventory of homes for sale continues to be low. The statistics point to a strong housing market this Spring with increased buyer activity. Sellers are in an excellent position to get their homes sold.

Now that the weather is improving the buyers are coming out in larger numbers and should drive additional sales. Many offers are still coming in over the asking price and sometimes they are significantly higher.

The buyer traffic at "Open Houses" is also increasing and she expects a large turnout for the property at 295 South Main Street in Randolph where she is having an "Open House" on Saturday April 5th from Noon to 2 PM. It is a 3-bedroom, 2 ½ bath colonial with a 2-car garage set on 1.15 acres of land. It features many updates and a partially finished basement. As a bonus the sellers are including 2 large screen TV's and a stereo surround system.
