The Summit assists parents who have concerns about their child’s diagnosis, including options for alternative medicine, nutrition, schooling, therapies, and more. Many parents are turning to biomedical treatments and therapies and most of these treatments are low-risk and some have the potential to be life-changing. The conference connects parents and caregivers with a wide range of resources, including doctors, advocates, medical professionals, and parents who have successfully experienced improvements in their children’s symptoms.

“

By sharing information and insights in a non-judgmental and collaborative way, this conference can aid families and individuals on the spectrum.”

Jay Goth, CEO

The Summit begins on Friday, April 11 with a wide variety of topics covered throughout the day. They include commentary from advocates, various approaches to holistic and alternative therapies, information on underlying conditions, and a special recorded message from the new Secretary of Health and Human Services, Robert F. Kennedy.

At 2:10 pm on that Friday, Taylor Cole, the Founder and Chairman of Burble Creativity, will present on the topic of "A New Way of Storytelling," Burble's approach to Minimally Defined Immersive Storytelling engages a child's imagination in a unique way, using light, sound and story.

"Our patented minimally defined immersion really sparks kids' imaginations," said Cole. "This is the key to providing a different experience – each time the story is shared, you can envision an entirely different version. We can't wait to partner with researchers to examine and quantify some of the results we have been seeing in our demo sessions."

The Burble Story Tent has been under development for over seven years. Hundreds of sessions have been attended by children of all types and ages. Many children on the autism spectrum have demonstrated a particular attraction to the tents.

"We are pleased to be able to sponsor this event," stated Jay Goth, CEO of Burble Creativity. "April is Autism Acceptance month, so this program fits right in. Autism Acceptance Month celebrates and honors the experiences and identities of Autistic individuals. It emphasizes understanding, inclusion, and support, moving beyond awareness towards meaningful acceptance. By sharing information and insights in a non-judgmental and collaborative way, this conference can aid families and individuals on the spectrum."
