The company's full range of virtual medical coding solutions, auditing, denial management and educational programs, are key components of revenue cycle services, focusing on:

- Underpayment or overpayment errors □ Incorrect coding can result in underpayment or overpayment, which can lead to penalties and audits.
- Revenue loss □ Consistent coding errors, including not coding for all services performed, can lead to revenue loss.
- Compliance Risks □ Non-compliance with regulations can result in fines, penalties, and loss of payer contracts.
- Untimely submission of claims □ Late submissions can result in denied claims, which affects reimbursement.

"Virtual medical coding offers a cost-effective approach to capturing revenue, ensuring compliance and avoiding costly mistakes,” says Vice President of Coding Business Development Paul Ferrazza. “CodeEMR is committed to educating, auditing, and providing meticulously accurate coding and auditing services that address the challenges and requirements of diverse healthcare operations.”
