The International Association of Art, an official partner of UNESCO, created World Art Day in 2012. To annually celebrate this day on April 15th, brings significant benefits to our cities and communities, including:

Stimulating economic growth by attracting tourism through public art celebrations.

Showcasing the talents of artists to national and international audiences.

Validating the role of artists as vital contributors to culture, education, and innovation.

Creating new income opportunities for local artists, creative businesses, and arts nonprofits through expanded exposure and community engagement.

SEE ART, DO ART, BE ART"
IAA-USA

The IAA-USA works to amplify the voices of artists—the individuals who help shape our environments, foster new social connections, and deepen our collective understanding of the world. Below are some of the events happening within the 50 States
