Internet Infrastructure Coalition Selects HostingJournalist Global News Magazine to Strengthen Its Member Advocacy

Internet Infrastructure Coalition (i2Coalition) Partners with HostingJournalist Global News Magazine to Strengthen Member Advocacy

RICHMOND, VA, UNITED STATES, April 8, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- i2Coalition (Internet Infrastructure Coalition), a leading North American trade association and voice for web hosting companies, CSPs, data centers, MSPs, and registrars, has initiated a partnership with HostingJournalist.com, a leading online news magazine for the global cloud, hosting and data center industry. i2Coalition now offers its more than 85 members low-threshold access to the HostingJournalist.com news platform through which members can self-publish their business content instantly alongside the editorial news.

i2Coalition collaborates with lawmakers and industry leaders to advocate for its members that include AWS, Google, DigitalOcean, OVHcloud, Newfold Digital, Cloudflare, Namecheap, GoDaddy, WebPros, Tucows, Bluehost, HostGator, DreamHost, Hostinger and others, ensuring these Internet Service Provider's voices are heard. It promotes the development of a robust, open Internet infrastructure worldwide, supporting innovation, privacy, and sustainability while fostering collaboration among stakeholders to address critical challenges in the Internet infrastructure sector. The partnership with the HostingJournalist news magazine supports i2Coalition's mission to strengthen member advocacy in the global Internet infrastructure sector and beyond.

As a leading news magazine for the cloud, hosting and data center infrastructure industry founded in 2013, HostingJournalist.com last year launched its HostingJournalist Insider self-publishing service. It allows Insider partners, including i2Coalition and its members, to create company profiles and instantly publish content without editorial interference. In designated editorial sections on the HostingJournalist.com global news platform, alongside the main editorial news, i2Coalition and its members can publish their press releases, blogs, videos, live/online events, staff updates, white papers, research reports, and eBooks.

Content Partner Self-Publishing Service

"Joining a cooperative organization like i2Coalition is a great way for our members to become involved in the debate over Internet infrastructure policy. This partnership with HostingJournalist Magazine will strengthen our members' advocacy," said Christian Dawson, co-founder and Executive Director of the Internet Infrastructure Coalition (i2Coalition). "Internet Service Providers' views are heard when they band together through i2Coalition. Together, we can drive change, even if our members lack resources to monitor legislation or influence decision-makers. We help them acquire knowledge, resources, and a community that is dedicated to defending their rights. By partnering with HostingJournalist, i2Coalition helps amplify member voices in key discussions shaping the Internet's future."

"The HostingJournalist editorial team puts ample time into informing the cloud, hosting, data center industry and beyond about the latest developments on a daily basis, with room for editorial contributions from within the sector," said Koen Stegeman, editor-in- Editor-in-Chief and Co-Founder of HostingJournalist.com. "With the debut of HostingJournalist Insider last year, content partners can now more easily contribute to our editorial efforts. Organizations can participate in HostingJournalist's editorial process from their own content management dashboard and share their business content - including press releases, blogs, videos, and more - in various editorial sections. We strongly support i2Coalition's Internet infrastructure mission and are therefore delighted that they're now becoming an Insider content partner while inviting their members to share their content via HostingJournalist.com as well."
