EAST HAMPTON, NY, UNITED STATES, April 9, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Award-winning photographer and mixed-media artist Steve Joester will showcase his latest exhibition, STRIPPED: Music that Changed the World, at The White Room Gallery in East Hampton Village, New York. The gallery, hailed by Artnet Worldwide as the one "Bringing Red Hot Art to the Hamptons," will host this immersive collection from April 23rd to May 11th, with an Opening Reception on Saturday, April 26th, from 6:00 to 8:00 pm.

Joester, an acclaimed photographer and mixed-media artist who captured the world of rock and roll during the 1970s and 80s, has recorded some of the most electrifying moments in music history. Rock 'n' roll became a powerful form of self-expression in the 1970's, with its stars challenging societal norms and forging an electric connection with audiences. Live performances amplified this rebellion, creating moments of energy and emotion that could never be recreated. Joester built his reputation capturing these defining scenes, preserving rock's raw spirit in a way that transports viewers back in time. His work, known for its raw energy and emotional depth, has immortalized some of the most legendary musicians in history, including Bob Marley, Annie Lennox, The Rolling Stones, Stevie Nicks, Queen, Blondie, AC/DC, Sting, Grace Jones and Pink Floyd. More than just an art show, STRIPPED serves as a time capsule of a generation that changed the world through music.

"Rock and roll was more than just music - it was a revolution that shaped culture and gave a voice to an entire generation. This exhibition at The White Room Gallery honors the legends who

Since 1997, Save The Music has jumpstarted new music programs in over 2,800 public schools nationwide. This school year, Save The Music plans to deliver 100 new music education programs, impacting the lives of thousands of students.

Oppenheim and his crew will be on hand for the opening night to film the reception for the upcoming full-length documentary chronicling the artist's extraordinary life and career.
