Every Protection Tax legit case is managed by qualified professionals, including IRS-enrolled agents, financial analysts, and documentation specialists who are trained to navigate federal tax law with precision.

From the moment a client begins the intake process, their case is routed through a structured chain of custody. This framework ensures that each phase — from transcript analysis and financial verification to the preparation of legal filings — is carried out by individuals with the authority and training to handle sensitive tax matters.

The chain of custody model begins with intake, where verified financial disclosures are collected and reviewed. This system preserves both the integrity of the data and the legal accuracy of any filing made with the IRS.

By maintaining a clearly defined workflow, Protection Tax avoids the pitfalls of fragmented case management — such as missed deadlines, unsupported claims, or procedural errors. Each decision is supported by verified information and reviewed in accordance with IRS standards.

The legit case structure is not just an internal practice — it reflects a broader commitment to lawful representation, client protection, and regulatory compliance.
