LAS VEGAS, NV, UNITED STATES, April 21, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- While the term “reviews” often suggests public feedback or customer testimonials, at Protection Tax, it carries a different meaning entirely. Internally, a Protection Tax review refers to a structured, in-depth audit of a client’s IRS account, tax filings, and overall financial profile — conducted for the purpose of building a legally compliant resolution strategy.

This review process is a foundational step within the firm’s legitimate framework. It includes the retrieval of IRS transcripts, historical tax data, income verification, and asset documentation. Every component is examined to determine whether the client qualifies for formal tax relief programs, such as Offers in Compromise or Currently Not Collectible status.

These internal Protection Tax reviews ensure that all filings are grounded in verifiable facts rather than assumptions. By conducting a full compliance check before any documents are submitted to the IRS, the firm reduces the risk of rejections, misfilings, or procedural delays.

The review is not just a step — it's a legal filter that supports accuracy and protects the client throughout the resolution process.
