“Safety First is the foundational pillar for everything we do at LSG Sky Chefs, and we ensure food safety is fully ingrained in our culture,” said Rosimeire Miranda, Senior Director, Food Safety and Quality, LSG Sky Chefs. “By partnering with DNV, we are reinforcing our dedication to meeting and exceeding industry food safety standards. Their expertise and global reach make them the right choice for this critical initiative.”

New advancements in food safety technology and global supply chain complexities have heightened the need for rigorous food safety certifications. According to Kathleen Wybourn,

Director of Food & Beverage North America for DNV, certification plays a vital role in upholding industry-leading safety and quality standards.

“HACCP certification is a globally recognized benchmark for food safety,” said Ms. Wybourn. “LSG Sky Chefs operates at a massive scale, and this certification will provide assurance that their processes meet the highest industry standards. We are proud to support their commitment to excellence.”

The certification process involves comprehensive audits, detailed risk assessments, and corrective actions to ensure compliance with HACCP standards. By partnering with DNV, LSG Sky Chefs is demonstrating its proactive approach to food safety, regulatory compliance, and continuous improvement.
