Marshall Morgan, CEO of MMJ Health

“The Cannabis Carnival was electric,” said Marshall Morgan, CEO of MMJ Health. “You could feel the energy — people asking questions, making connections and taking control of their health journeys. We created a space where patients felt seen, heard and supported — and where curiosity was met with compassion, not judgment. Events like this are how we move the conversation forward and ensure people get the care and respect they deserve.”

Attendees ranging from seasoned patients to the cannabis-curious packed the venue to connect directly with industry leaders, discover new products and learn how medical marijuana is transforming health care through science-backed treatments.

“This event was about people first and that’s what made it so special,” said David Briz, head of retail for Jungle Boys Florida. “We meet patients every day who are searching for answers — struggling with pain, anxiety, PTSD or chronic conditions — and often they don’t know where to turn. The Cannabis Carnival gave us a chance to really connect, listen to their stories and help guide them toward options that can make a real difference. It wasn’t about selling a product but about offering hope, building trust and showing people they’re not alone. Seeing the smiles, the relief and the excitement throughout the day reminded us exactly why we do what we do.”

MMJ Health is dedicated to making medical marijuana more accessible in Florida. With 21 locations statewide and nine years in business, MMJ Health is setting a new standard for medical marijuana certifications and patient care.
