Braniff International

Panagra, short for Pan American-Grace Airways, was born in 1929 from a partnership between Pan American World Airways and W. R. Grace & Company, with the bold mission of connecting North and South America by air. Known for its luxurious service and pioneering spirit, Panagra opened dazzling new travel routes across the Americas, whisking passengers to far-flung destinations like Peru, Chile and Argentina. For nearly four decades the carrier defined the golden age of travel. The fabled airline merged with Braniff Airways in 1967, becoming the largest US airline serving Latin America.

ABOUT STICK NO BILLS

Stick No Bills was founded in Galle Fort, Sri Lanka, in 2011 by British entrepreneurs Philip James Baber and Meg Gage Williams to connect cultures and transcend borders by spearheading a renaissance in poster art.

The legacy brands Stick No Bills works closely with are the custodians of a distinctive stylistic influence that perpetuates popular culture to this day, including the giants of the advent of jetset travel such as Pan American World Airways, Lufthansa, British Airways and Braniff International Airways. Building on a formula first conceived at the poster specialist's Asia Flagship Gallery in Galle Fort, Sri Lanka, Stick No Bills galleries around the world feature collections place-centric to their location.
