As college applications become increasingly complex, GoodGoblin.ai continues to innovate by directly providing students with powerful yet straightforward tools. Early adopters are already experiencing dramatic improvements thanks to real-time probability scores that utilize years of admission data, including multi-year CDS records from top institutions—addressing the age-old question every student has asked: “Can you help me evaluate my application holistically and tell me how strong it is before I submit?” For the first time, students can access personalized insights that reveal their admission success potential before they click “apply.”

Transforming the Interview Process

The new advanced student profile builder allows students to capture the essence of their personal stories by recording key highlights from their educational journeys and life experiences.

Within the profile builder, students can access curated examples from previously successful applicant profiles, enabling them to quickly get started while having access to outstanding profiles. The GoodGoblin platform then utilizes each student's profile to customize every feature, including application review, college matches, career guidance, essay reviews, essay outlines, reference essays, essay advice, and AI editors. “Our interview update feature ensures that every student can present a clear, authentic narrative about who they are,” said Ashish Bhargava, Founder and CEO of GoodGoblin.ai. “It’s all about empowering you to articulate your unique journey while receiving smart, data-driven feedback that was once difficult to obtain.”

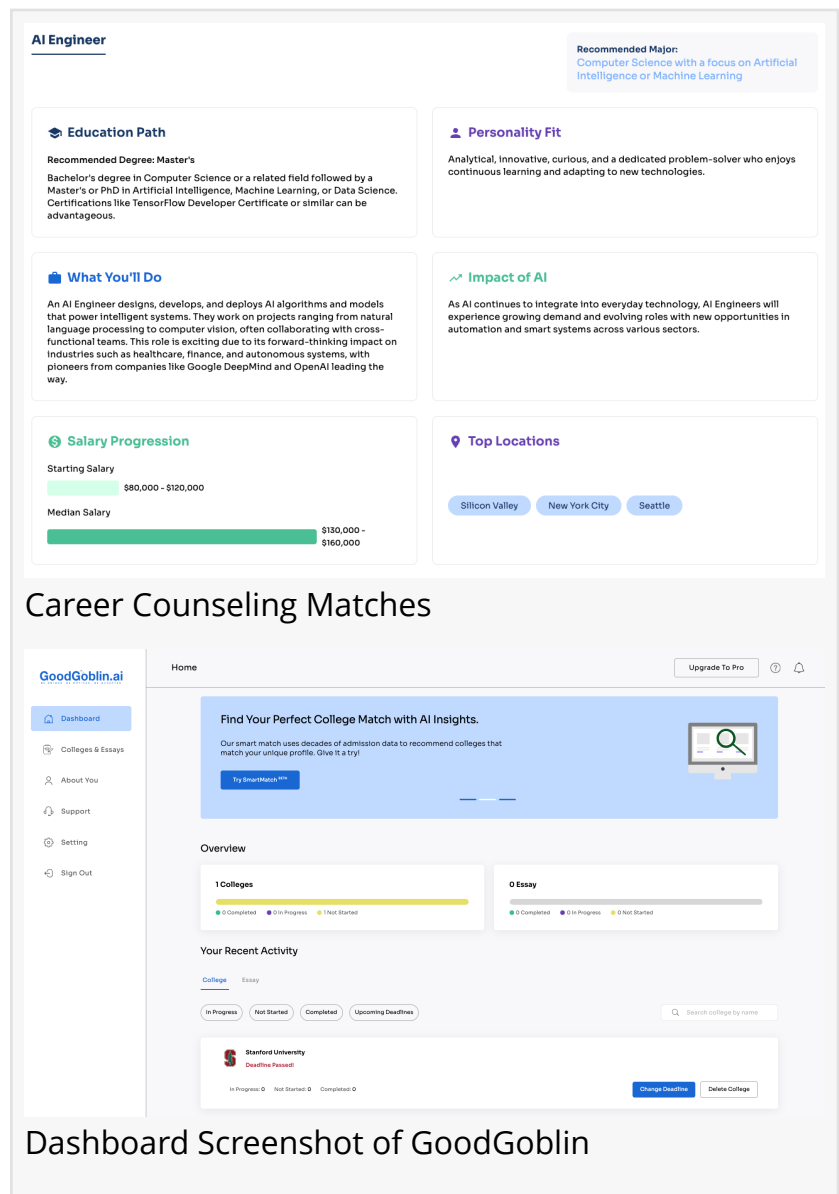

Revolutionizing Essay Reviews

GoodGoblin.ai’s new essay review tools elevate application support to the next level. Students can now upload their essays for comprehensive, multi-layered feedback addressing structural coherence, tone, and clarity. With up to four rounds of iterative feedback per essay and an average of seven detailed critiques, each draft becomes progressively refined. “Our essay review feature is a true co-pilot—it provides a safety net of insights that enhance your writing while you remain in control,” explained Bhargava. “It’s the answer to every high schooler’s dream: knowing exactly how strong your application is before submission.”

Customizable AI Models for Personalized Guidance

Recognizing that no two students are alike, GoodGoblin.ai allows users to select their preferred AI model. Options range from standard models to premium variants available exclusively to higher-tier subscribers. This customization ensures that every aspect of the application process—from profile creation to essay refinement—is finely tuned to each student’s style and goals. “The ability to choose your AI model means you’re not just getting generic advice—you’re receiving personalized, sophisticated guidance based on years of admissions data,” said

Bhargava. "It's about flexibility and personalization, putting the power back in your hands."

Immediate Impact: Evaluate Your Application Before You Apply

GoodGoblin.ai's groundbreaking use of historical admission data and CDS records empowers students to evaluate their applications holistically and in real-time. By analyzing trends and comparing their profiles with those of previous successful applicants, the platform generates a probability of admission success—providing the insight that every high schooler has dreamed of: knowing the strength of their application before submission. "This feature is a game changer," said Bhargava. "For the first time, students can see how their unique profiles stack up against top-tier institutions and make informed decisions to boost their chances of acceptance."

A True Copilot in College Admissions

GoodGoblin.ai's latest features highlight that while the platform provides robust AI-driven support, students remain the authors of their journey. By capturing story elements during interviews, offering iterative essay feedback, and allowing model customization, GoodGoblin is an intelligent copilot—enhancing every step of the admissions process without overshadowing creativity. This approach enhances the quality of each application and boosts student confidence by ensuring they maintain complete control over their narrative.
