A Global Music and Humanitarian Movement Calling Artists Worldwide to Raise $14 Million for Pediatric Clinics in Ghana—Broadcast to Over 250 Countries

ACCRA, GHANA, April 14, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The DreamChild Foundation presents the 2025 HoodTalk Music Festival: Unity Edition, powered by Virtual Hub, StepNorth, Platinum Star Media Group, Inc., and Fly-Away Promotions, Inc., an international cultural phenomenon that unites music, mission, and movement for a powerful cause.

This humanitarian event will be headlined by Ghana's global music icon Stonebwoy and broadcast live to over 250 countries on Friday, May 9, 2025, at Independence Square in Accra. With an expected turnout of 15,000+ in-person attendees, the festival calls on artists from around the globe to join the lineup and unite their voices to raise $14 million to build five pediatric clinics across Ghana.

"We plan to achieve SDG 3—health for children—for peace and prosperity," said Kofi Amoakohene, Co-founder of the DreamChild Foundation. "Our focus is on sustainable health infrastructure that gives every child a chance at life."

The Power of Unity Through Music

Since its inception, HoodTalk has evolved from a grassroots initiative into a globally recognized festival with a purpose. The 2025 theme, "Connecting Music, Heritage, and Humanity," empowers youth, celebrates culture, and amplifies the collective voice of artists, creatives, and changemakers.

This year's festival is co-hosted by:

Dr. Marie Y. Lemelle, PhD, International Goodwill Ambassador for DreamChild Foundation and Platinum Star Public Relations, Inc. CEO.

Dr. Hasaan Rasheed, an All-American track star turned actor and humanitarian, is the CEO of Fly-Away Promotions, Inc., whose next feature film—shot in Ghana—will premiere an exclusive trailer during the event.

"Where legends rise and voices unite: Join us as we craft a global crescendo. Your music deserves the world's ears," said Dr. Rasheed.

A Tribute and A Call to Action

The 2025 HoodTalk Unity Edition also honors the victims of the May 9, 2001, stadium tragedy, when 127 lives were lost during a football match in Accra. The festival transforms tragedy into tribute, using music to inspire healing and hope.

"I call on the world's youth—particularly the youth of Africa—to play an active role in achieving Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The global goals are peace and prosperity for people and the planet. The world needs your creativity, knowledge, reach, and energy to help find innovative solutions to our world's challenges," said H.E. Nana Akufo-Addo, who served as the 13th president of Ghana from 2017 to 2025.

Two-Part Festival Experience

The festival includes two key experiences:

1. The Youth Festival – A powerful platform for young voices to lead dialogues on climate change, sustainable development, and African innovation—powered by art, music, and creativity.
2. The CSR Fundraising Drive – The $14 million goal will support the construction and operation of five pediatric clinics in underserved regions of Ghana, ensuring access to critical care for thousands of children.

"Music is the universal language for healing, giving back, and making a difference," said Dr.
