Live events are great. I love meeting fans who stop by, and I also love meeting new people who haven't read anything of mine yet and are looking for something new.”

“Live events are great,” said Mancini, who has been on stages ranging from performing at the Hollywood Improv to doing panels at San Diego Comic-Con. “I love meeting fans who stop by, and I also love meeting new people who haven't read anything of mine yet and are looking for something new. The LA Times Festival of Books is a great time, and it's a celebration of stories and books. I am excited to be a part of it.”

There is no cost to attend the Los Angeles Times Festival of Books, which began in 1996.

Mancini will be at Comic Con Revolution and the Pasadena Comic Con next month, and then at San Diego Comic Con in July.

Of Pacify Me, Mancini says, "My book contains helpful advice, anecdotes, and lots of science fiction references." Meanwhile, The Comedy Film Nerds Guide to Movies had thirteen writers who contributed and is a funny and informative look at different film genres with a top ten and bottom ten list at the end of each chapter.

The graphic novels explore what happens when the child savior of a fantasy realm is forced to return as an adult (Long Ago and Far Away) and follow a petty criminal as he inadvertently becomes entangled in a centuries-long supernatural martial arts battle (Rise of the Kung Fu Dragon Master).
