Community

After completing his dental degree, Dr. Brockley pursued a residency at Wilmington Medical Center in Wilmington, Delaware. His early focus on research laid a foundation for a lifelong commitment to evidence-based care. In the midst of the Vietnam War Era, he served with distinction as a Lieutenant in the U.S. Navy Dental Corps. Following his honorable service, Dr. Brockley returned to Pennsylvania and, in 1975, opened his private practice in Butler, just north of Pittsburgh. From that day forward, he has served generations of families with kindness, precision, and respect.

Dr. Brockley also held the position of President of the Butler County Dental Society and continues to be recognized as President Emeritus. He is a lifetime member of the Delta Sigma Dental Fraternity and served as Class Secretary during his time at the University of Pittsburgh Dental School—a position that reflects his leadership and devotion to the dental community.

Innovator in Sedation Dentistry and Gum Disease Treatment

Throughout his career, Dr. Brockley has sought innovative ways to overcome the biggest obstacles his patients face. One such obstacle is fear. Recognizing that dental anxiety is the leading reason patients avoid treatment, Dr. Brockley became one of the region's earliest adopters of Conscious Oral Sedation. Trained in 1996, he pioneered the use of a non-invasive, pill-based sedation technique in his practice to help even the most anxious patients receive the care they need.

His commitment to innovation did not stop there. With a growing number of diabetic patients in his care, Dr. Brockley dedicated significant time to researching the intersection of diabetes and oral health. This research led him to develop a new standard of care, focusing on early detection and treatment to prevent the compounding effects of periodontal disease in diabetic patients. Dr. Brockley understands that diabetes and gum disease share a bidirectional relationship—poorly managed diabetes can exacerbate periodontal disease and vice versa. His focus on infection control and systemic health has significantly improved patient outcomes.

Dr. Brockley's proprietary Soft Tissue Management (STM) program has redefined how periodontal disease is treated within his practice. His STM protocol is not only focused on treating symptoms but also eradicating the root cause—bacteria. With over 90% of his baby boomer patients affected by some form of gum disease, this personalized approach to care has improved health outcomes and empowered patients with the knowledge to manage their oral health effectively.

A Leader in Mini Dental Implant Innovation

As his career progressed, Dr. Brockley continued to expand the scope and capabilities of his practice. After mastering traditional techniques for crowns, bridges, and dentures, he adopted Small Diameter Implants (SDI), commonly known as Mini Dental Implants. This innovative technology has allowed Dr. Brockley to offer comprehensive tooth replacement solutions for a wide range of patients, regardless of age, bone density, or health status.

Small Diameter Implants allow for full mouth restoration, stabilization of loose dentures, and replacement of single or multiple missing teeth. These implants are minimally invasive, require shorter healing times, and are more affordable than traditional implant options. For many of Dr. Brockley's patients, these procedures have been truly life-changing—restoring their ability to chew, speak, and smile with confidence.

In recognition of his expertise, Dr. Brockley became a Diplomate of the International Academy of Mini Dental Implants (IAMDI), the highest honor bestowed by the organization. He also serves as Secretary of the Academy and is a proud member of the Mini Dental Implant Centers of America (MDICA), an elite group of implantologists dedicated to excellence in small diameter implant treatment.

As the owner and operator of the first Mini Dental Implant Center of America in the Greater Pittsburgh area, Dr. Brockley continues to set the standard for advanced implant dentistry. His practice, Brockley Dental Center, is a trusted name for patients seeking permanent solutions to missing teeth and denture instability.
