Curated Group Show "Our Earth: What Artists Can Do" Opens Alongside Five Solo Exhibitions

TAG Gallery proudly announces its April exhibitions, showcasing five solo shows by artists Lee Cooper, Agop Gemdjian, Negin Haghighi-Mismas, Ellen King, and Isabella Stoakes, alongside a special Earth Day-inspired group exhibition curated by Sunhee Joo "Our Earth: What Artists Can Do." The exhibitions open to the public on Wednesday, April 23 and run through Friday, May 16. The gallery will host a free, public opening reception on Saturday, April 26, from 5–8 PM.

TAG's April exhibitions explore the power of visual narrative and the role of art in interpreting our rapidly evolving relationship with nature, identity, memory, and place. These solo and group exhibitions offer a wide range of styles and mediums—from vivid surrealist oils and archival photography to emotional abstraction and curated eco-conscious artworks.

TAG Curatorial: "Our Earth: What Artists Can Do"

Curated by artist and UCLA MFA graduate Sunhee Joo, "Our Earth: What Artists Can Do" commemorates the 55th anniversary of Earth Day. Joo's curatorial debut at TAG brings together diverse voices from the Los Angeles art community, asking artists not necessarily to answer ecological questions, but to inspire a renewed emotional connection with the natural world.

Solo Exhibitions | April 23 – May 16, 2025

Lee Cooper

After a 50-year hiatus, Lee Cooper returns to the art world with a photographic solo exhibition that spans decades of archival image-making and print experimentation.

Agop Gemdjian

An Armenian-born artist raised in Bulgaria and now working in the U.S., Agop Gemdjian presents a dynamic body of paintings that navigate memory, myth, and emotional abstraction.

Negin Haghighi-Mismas

Born in Southern California and raised in Iran, Negin Haghighi-Mismas explores inner landscapes through painting—infusing her canvases with vibrant color, emotional intensity, and symbolic gestures.

Ellen King

A native of Los Angeles, Ellen Armer King's mixed-media works channel her global travels and Southern California roots. Her compositions are vivid, energetic, and deeply reflective.
