LOS ANGELES, CA, UNITED STATES,
April 16, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ --

How far would you go to escape a past that refuses to stay buried? In "Web of Silence," Kathleen Dutton composes a tale of mystery, deception, and resilience.

Beth Brockton is on the run, leaving behind her identity, her hometown, and even her fiancé, Sam Andrews, to escape a dark and dangerous deception. After two years in hiding, she briefly returns home for her mother's funeral—only to flee again. But Sam refuses to let her disappear without answers, determined to uncover the secrets she so desperately guards. However, Sam is not the only one searching for her. As her past closes in, Beth must confront the terrifying truth and find the strength to break free from the sinister web that threatens to consume her.

Web of Silence

A master of psychological suspense, Kathleen Dutton has been passionate about writing since childhood, using storytelling as an escape into a world of endless possibilities. A former clinical specialist and field engineer, she now dedicates her time to writing thrilling, character-driven fiction in Northern Michigan, where she lives with her husband, family, and three office assistant cats. Inspired by the landscapes that once fueled Hemingway's early works, she continues to craft stories that captivate readers.

This suspense-filled novel will be featured at the LA Times Festival of Books at Olympus Story House Booth #182 in the Gold Zone.

"Web of Silence" is available on Amazon, Barnes & Noble, and other digital platforms.
