

ValueRays® Releases Updated 2024 Model of Infrared Heated Keyboard Pad

What began in 2009 was perfected in 2024 creating an ergonomic heated wrist rest for keyboard users with infrared heat to relax stiff muscles overworked hands.

PALM SPRINGS, CA, UNITED STATES,
June 17, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ --

ValueRays®, a provider of infrared heated computer accessories, has released an updated version of its Heated Keyboard Pad for 2024.

Designed to improve comfort at the computer, the newest model provides consistent, low-voltage warmth across the keyboard area, supporting individuals who work in cold environments or suffer from hand and wrist discomfort.

ValueRays Heated Keyboard Pad - 2024 Ergonomic Design

Many people don't realize cold hands can impact not just comfort, but productivity and even circulation. That's why we updated our original keyboard pad with a fresh new design for 2024.”

says founder Anna Miller.

The 2024 revision includes improvements to ergonomic design and heating distribution. The pad features a flexible carbon fiber heating element, powered by USB, that emits infrared heat to the user's hands and wrists. The product is compatible with full-sized keyboards and is commonly used in office, home office, and remote work setups.

According to the company, earlier reviews associated with the listing may reflect the original 2010 version of the product. The current model has been updated to meet the needs of today's users.

Key Product Features:

Infrared heat delivered through a soft surface pad

USB-powered for ease of use

Ergonomic layout designed for typing comfort

Designed for use in colder offices, schools, or home workspaces
