

A Celebration of Purpose and Academic Achievement: Interfaith University's Commencement Ceremony

PENSACOLA, FL, UNITED STATES, April 24, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- On Saturday, April 12, 2025, graduates, supporters, and leaders came together in a powerful celebration of academic achievement, faith, and purpose during the April 2025 Commencement Ceremony of Interfaith University. The event was a highlight of the annual FOFMI Partnership Conference, a week-long event focused on rededication, consecration, and restoration.

This milestone occasion honored students who successfully completed their degree programs, recognizing their dedication to both academic excellence and spiritual maturity. Notably, the ceremony also recognized newly enrolled students wearing bright yellow robes, symbolizing their successful completion of the university's mandatory introductory requirements and their official start in pursuing their faith-based degrees.

Dean Wofford, delivered an awesome commencement address. Her heartfelt message centered on the significance of maintaining balance—spiritually and practically—especially during life's most challenging seasons. Drawing from personal experience, she shared how she navigated academic pursuits amid ministry responsibilities and family commitments during the COVID-19 pandemic.

“There were times I wanted to give up,” she admitted. “But God had a calling on my life. He told me to finish what I started.” Her testimony of resilience and divine purpose deeply resonated with attendees. Dr. Wofford encouraged students to stay committed to their calling and reminded them that challenges often precede breakthroughs.

To the new students, she offered a personal charge—remain faithful, humble, and focused. “The Lord knows the plan He has for you,” she declared. “Every hill and valley is part of the preparation for your purpose. It’s not about your plan—it’s about God’s plan. Stay low, stay humble, and stay connected to Jesus Christ. There is no limit to what you can do through Him.”

Beyond the ceremony, the conference offered over 30 impactful sessions covering areas such as empowerment, financial stewardship, Christian education, the arts, event planning, and more. Attendees also experienced special gatherings like a community concert, a formal honors banquet, a book fair, and an open house showcasing the university’s offerings.

Interfaith University continues to equip individuals from all walks of life with over 50 academic programs—from certificates to doctorate degrees—through a flexible, scholarship-supported platform.
