NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, April 25, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- According to a new study published by Knowledge Sourcing Intelligence, the cocoa butter equivalent market is projected to grow at a CAGR of 6.27% between 2025 and 2030 to reach US$2,004.872 million by 2030.

The global cocoa butter equivalent market is projected to experience significant growth in the coming years, driven by the increasing demand for sustainable and natural ingredients in the food and cosmetic industries.

Cocoa butter equivalent (CBE) is a vegetable fat that is used as a substitute for cocoa butter in various applications, including confectionery, bakery, and personal care products. It is derived from plant sources such as shea, mango, and sal butter, making it a more sustainable and environmentally-friendly option compared to traditional cocoa butter, which is derived from cocoa beans. With the growing awareness and demand for sustainable products, the CBE market is expected to witness significant growth in the coming years.

One of the key factors driving the growth of the CBE market is the rising demand for natural and organic ingredients in the food and cosmetic industries. Consumers are becoming more conscious about the ingredients used in their products and are opting for natural and sustainable alternatives.

This has led to an increase in the use of CBE in various food and cosmetic products, as it is a healthier and more sustainable option compared to traditional cocoa butter.

The Asia Pacific region is expected to dominate the cocoa butter equivalent market, with the increasing demand for natural and organic products in countries like India and China. The region is also home to some of the major producers of CBE, such as Malaysia and Indonesia. Furthermore, the growing popularity of vegan and plant-based diets in the region is also expected to drive the demand for CBE in the food industry.

Overall, the cocoa butter equivalent market is set to witness significant growth in the coming years, driven by the increasing demand for sustainable and natural ingredients. With the rise of conscious consumerism and the shift towards sustainable practices, the market is expected to present lucrative opportunities for players in the food and cosmetic industries.
