The Global Law Experts Handbook Selection Process

GLE's team selects lawyers to feature in the Global Law Experts annual handbook after an initial nomination process. This is followed by research on individual lawyers, respective law firms, affiliations, client base and case results. Successful nominees are then reviewed by the organisation's Nominations Panel, which comprises recognised figures in the international legal community.

The end product of this rigorous process is a list of the leading lawyers in more than 100 countries, with one lawyer representing a distinct practice area in the respective jurisdiction and/or region. Each GLE international business law handbook covers Europe, the Americas, Asia & Oceania and Africa & the Middle East.

Benefits For the Global Business Community

Although international trade presents numerous business opportunities, success in the global arena depends on many factors, among them expert legal representation. International companies often face legal challenges associated with taxes, IP, labour law, trade restrictions, data protection, contracts, trade restrictions, dispute resolution, choice of business structure and consumer rights.

International business lawyers help companies navigate these legal challenges associated with operating globally. This entails assisting organizations in understanding and complying with the laws and regulations that could affect their overseas operations. With the increasing complexity of international trade agreements and compliance requirements, having a seasoned global business lawyer is an asset for every multinational business.

International trade laws are dynamic, changing according to technological shifts, geopolitics, and economies. As such, CEOs, founders, investors, and other business leaders need to work with the best legal minds to navigate the global legal landscape more effectively. GLE's comprehensive business law guide offers the international business community access to the top global legal professionals. All our law experts are rigorously vetted and peer-reviewed.

Benefits for Law Firms and Lawyers

Lawyers also stand to gain immensely when featured on GLE's international business law handbook. According to a recent Thomson Reuters U.S. Consumer Legal Needs Survey, almost two-thirds of the respondents reported turning to legal directories when looking for legal
