For the first time since 1990, women's professional tennis returns to Newport, with the Hologic WTA Tour joining the ATP Challenger Tour for the only grass court stop on both tours outside of Europe.

"The International Tennis Hall of Fame is very excited to welcome the Hologic WTA Tour and host twice the tennis this year at the Hall of Fame Open," said Brewer Rowe, Tournament Director.

"We are confident in our ability to continue to attract top talent from both tours and deliver a first-class fan experience"

Single-session tickets start at $45 for adults, with series tickets including access to the same seats for all seven days of the tournament starting at $409. All ticketed fans receive unlimited access to the newly renovated museum, fan village activations and Horseshoe Court, where Wimbledon matches will be broadcast throughout the week.

Equal prize money of $200,000 will be awarded to both the ATP and WTA draws. With support from the ITHF, the Hall of Fame Open will mark the one of the highest 125-level prize purses on the Hologic WTA Tour this year. The tournament will feature at least five courts of simultaneous men's and women's action for the first four days, including two match courts in the Stadium on
