"Military service means acquiring an array of specialized technical capabilities, developing communication and leadership skills, and focusing on a mission with total diligence. These are traits that employers are thrilled to find, particularly in a region plagued with skilled workforce shortages. Devoting time exclusively to our veterans at the job fair is good for them and great for our employers," said NYS Senator Jake Ashby.

"As someone who 's currently serving in the National Guard, I know that the transition from military to civilian life doesn't always come with a clear roadmap, especially when it comes to meaningful employment. Our Veterans have the skills, discipline, and drive to succeed in any field; they just need the right opportunities. Job fairs like this help make that happen, connecting Veterans with employers who understand and value their experience. I'm proud to support efforts like this, and I'm grateful to everyone working to make sure Veterans have the tools they need to thrive," said Albany County Executive Daniel P. McCoy.

"Helping our veterans find meaningful employment is one of the most important ways we can honor their service," said Assemblyman Angelo Santabarbara. "Job fairs like this one not only connect veterans to great career opportunities but also remind them that their service is respected and appreciated long after their uniforms are retired."
