"When it comes to welders and mesothelioma or asbestos exposure lung cancer these types of skilled trades workers are incredibly unique because before they could begin work in the mid to early 1980s or before they had to put on gear that contained asbestos. The gear included a welding helmet, apron, vest, or gloves. Before 1983 almost all this type of equipment contained asbestos. So, before the welder started working on machinery or areas where asbestos was present-they were wearing it.
