MIAMI, FL, UNITED STATES, May 8, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Brina Medical (US) LLC — formed through the strategic integration of HealthWright Technologies and Meridian Health Services Network — is proud to announce the launch of the upgraded CMAT Advantage, a next-generation point-of-care diagnostic device engineered to help hospitals and healthcare systems proactively manage chronic diseases at a substantially reduced cost and burden on the under-resourced national health system.

Brina Medical envisions a future where seamless, accessible, and intelligent diagnostics are standard across all levels of care.

Designed and manufactured in the United States, the CMAT Advantage provides early and accurate identification of chronic illnesses—well before symptoms manifest—empowering clinicians to intervene earlier and improve long-term outcomes. With its enhanced architecture, the device now integrates proprietary AI-driven software and advanced productivity tools, enabling scalable deployment across large hospital systems, long-term care networks, and integrated delivery networks (IDNs).

“The CMAT Advantage has always set the standard in early chronic disease detection,” said Don Wright, CEO of Brina Medical. “Now, with our fully integrated operational ecosystem, we’re ready to support even the largest hospital and healthcare organisations with intelligent diagnostics that can demonstrate improvements in patient health outcomes.”

Brina Medical's updated platform is positioned to reduce the burden of preventable complications, increase clinician efficiency at the point of care, and contribute to measurable cost savings across high-risk populations.

“Our team’s extensive expertise ensures seamless implementation of the CMAT Advantage — from pilot to scale,” Wright added. “Our goal is not just to supply devices, but to partner with health systems to elevate care delivery and system sustainability.”

Strategic Expansion and Investment

Fueling Brina Medical’s growth is a strategic partnership with CHG Meridian, a global technology financing provider with a specialised healthcare division and deep ties across the U.S. medical technology sector.

The CMAT Advantage sets the standard in early chronic disease detection — now with an integrated ecosystem to help large health systems improve outcomes and care efficiency.”
