

Jay Skipworth Joins Legacy Makers TV to Share Insights on Reinvention, Resilience, and Building Legacy at Any Age

FL, UNITED STATES, May 12, 2025

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Jay Skipworth, entrepreneur and founder of the Glluz app, is set to appear on Legacy Makers TV, where he will share insights on launching a tech startup at 60, using life experience as an entrepreneurial edge, and turning setbacks into fuel for impact.

Legacy Makers is a cinematic docu-series that spotlights entrepreneurs and change-makers by capturing their personal and professional journey. This unique TV show, hosted by Rudy Mawer, features top names such as Carmen Electra and many more to be announced soon.

In his episode, Skipworth will explore how a lifelong love for sports and music helped him overcome a childhood speech stammer—and later shaped the confidence and communication skills he brings to business. He breaks down the path from redundancy and reinvention to building Glluz, a platform designed to connect sports enthusiasts through shared interests and wellness. Viewers will walk away with practical insight on resilience, resourcefulness, and the power of persistence at any stage of life.

“Legacy is bigger than business: Glluz isn’t just about tech or profit — it’s about community, well-being, and connection,” said Skipworth.

Jay’s episode will be available soon on Inside Success Network streaming platforms.
