The significant rising incidences of hormonal imbalances are expected to drive the menorrhagia market forward. These imbalances are disruptions in the body's endocrine system where there is an overabundance or a deficiency of a hormone, causing several health issues like weight changes, mood swings, fatigue, or reproductive problems. A combination of lifestyle factors, environmental influences, and medical conditions have led to an increase in hormonal imbalances. In January 2025, the World Health Organization revealed polycystic ovary syndrome as a public health issue affecting an estimated 6-13% of women of reproductive age annually. The rising prevalence of such hormone disorders is expected to bolster the menorrhagia market's growth.
