

Save Ohio Bees Collaborates with Kendra Scott

Efforts to Restore Regional Pollinator Habitat

MASSILLON, OH, UNITED STATES, May 13, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In celebration of World Bee Day, Save Ohio Bees is collaborating with Kendra Scott to restore native pollinator habitat in Ohio. One in four native bee species face the threat of extinction, including many native bee species that are essential to food crop pollination.

"The health and resilience of native bees is directly tied to our own," said Tracy Teuscher, certified naturalist and ecotherapist, and founder of Save Ohio Bees. "With the support of Kendra Scott, we can bring attention to the threats facing native bees while raising vital funds for habitat restoration."

On May 20, World Bee Day, through May 21, Kendra Scott will donate 20 percent of all online purchases to Save Ohio Bees when the code GIVEBACK-JFYSA is used at checkout. Every $1,000 raised will restore an acre of pollinator habitat through Save Ohio Bees.
