TalentGuard is solving a critical challenges faced by employers —how to align training & skills with opportunity. We backed a company that's building the infrastructure for skill-based outcomes.”

Sean Brown, Managing Director, Juvo Ventures.

powered workforce intelligence platform, is proud to announce a strategic investment from Juvo Ventures Fund II, LP (Juvo Ventures), a premier venture firm dedicated to transforming the future of learning and work. This investment strengthens TalentGuard's mission to revolutionize how organizations achieve measurable, skill-based workforce outcomes that drive talent mobility.

“Juvo's investment is a strong vote of confidence in our vision to close the education-to-employment gap and deliver meaningful workforce transformation,” said Linda Ginac, CEO of TalentGuard. “As a fund backed by one of the world's largest online universities, Juvo brings not only capital but deep expertise in lifelong learning and skills-based pathways that align perfectly with our mission.”

The funding will accelerate the expansion of TalentGuard's patent-pending WorkforceGPT family of products, including autonomous agents like the Role Builder Agent, advancing the company's vision for Agentic AI that powers skill-based role creation, personalized career development, and internal mobility at scale.

“TalentGuard is solving one of the most critical challenges facing employers today—how to align training and skills with opportunity in a rapidly changing world of work. We're proud to back a company that's building the infrastructure for skill-based outcomes at scale, empowering organizations and individuals alike to thrive in the new economy,” said Sean Brown, Managing Director, Juvo Ventures.

Together with Juvo Ventures, TalentGuard is building a smarter, more equitable future of work—where every person has a clear path to grow, and every company has the intelligence to unlock that potential.
