About SourceLess Inc.

SourceLess Inc. is developing a hybrid decentralized architecture that combines elements of Web3 with enhanced user accessibility. Its goal is to support secure data management, private communication, and interoperable identity systems through blockchain technology.

Key components of the SourceLess ecosystem include:

- STR.Domains – Personalized blockchain-based domain identifiers used to represent digital identities.
- STR.Talk – A private, encrypted communication app offering blockchain-level privacy and utility features.
- Ccoin Finance – A platform focused on tools that support digital asset operations within the SourceLess environment.
- ARES AI – A multilingual and context-aware artificial intelligence engine integrated across services.
- SLNN (SourceLess Network Nodes) – A foundational mesh layer for distributed internet access and node validation.

The company aims to support transparent, efficient, and user-centered digital solutions by integrating these components into a broader decentralized network.
