“Cancer taught me to listen to my body—and to feed it with real, wholesome foods,” said Everhart. “BareOrganics was born from that experience. These are the products I wish I had when I was healing.”

People ask, “What are Superfoods?” Superfoods are specific whole foods that are rich in nutrients and have great health benefits when used as part of a healthy, well-balanced diet. These foods contain an identified combination of compounds, fiber, vitamins, antioxidants, and micronutrients that may promote optimal health benefits and often may be used for fighting disease or weight loss. It’s the antioxidant component that folks are raving about. It’s believed that having the proper mix of healthy superfoods may decrease your risk factors and increase overall heart health, create a stronger immune system, lower cholesterol, and reduce inflammation to help combat arthritis. Ingredients considered Superfoods include Acai, Berries, Cinnamon, Turmeric, Chia Seeds, Beets, Wheat Grass, Mushrooms, and many more

BareOrganics offers a versatile lineup of tasty superfood powders for smoothies, soups, baked goods, cereals, or any recipes, and can even be used for DIY face and lip masks, salves, scrubs, tinctures. There are also water enhancers, teas, and multi-Award winning coffee blends. BareOrganics supports total wellness—inside and out.

This National Cancer Survivors Day, Everhart is encouraging fellow survivors—and anyone pursuing a healthier lifestyle—to explore nature's medicine cabinet through simple, nutritious ingredients that make a difference. BareOrganics products are carried in stores everywhere including Walmart, HEB Stores, Whole Foods, Sprouts and more.
