

Japan's CAMSHOP Launches Official Honda Building Blocks – Real Architecture Meets Toy Brick Art

Licensed by Honda, this miniature brick model of the iconic Aoyama Honda Headquarters brings Japan's automotive culture to life.

HAKUSAN, ISHIKAWA PREF, JAPAN, May 27, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- CAMSHOP.JP, operated by Faith Co., Ltd. in Ishikawa, Japan, proudly announces the launch of a new collectible: a brick-style miniature replica of Honda's Tokyo headquarters building. Developed under official license from Honda Motor Co., Ltd., the product combines architectural realism with playful charm, ideal for both automotive fans and block-building enthusiasts.

This limited-edition model faithfully reproduces Honda's Aoyama headquarters, known for its modern design and status as a symbol of Japanese engineering excellence. Measuring 135mm wide, 95mm deep, and 70mm tall when completed, the model includes branding elements such as the iconic Honda logo and even signage reading "Welcome to Honda" just like the real building.

The block set includes 366 pieces and offers a rewarding building experience for fans of all ages. To keep the structure compact and display-friendly, the product features a flat roof design and a simplified base. It makes for a perfect desktop ornament or a conversation-starting gift.

Starting May 23, 2025, the Honda building block set will be available through CAMSHOP.JP and select online retailers. With its high-quality parts and detailed design, it is already attracting pre-release interest among both Honda fans and architecture lovers alike.
