

Four Frost Law Attorneys Named to What's Up? Magazine's Rising Stars List

WASHINGTON, District of Columbia – Four attorneys from Frost Law have been named to the 2025 Up & Coming Lawyers/Rising Stars list by What's Up? Magazine, a regional publication that highlights outstanding attorneys under 40 who are shaping the future of the legal profession in the Chesapeake Bay region. The award recognizes legal professionals who demonstrate leadership, dedication to clients, and a strong record of success across their practice areas. This year's Frost Law honorees include Alla Cates, Uriel Stern, Robert Braland, and Zoha Sohail. Cates and Stern were recognized in the Tax Law category, while Braland and Sohail were honored in the Trust & Estate/Wills & Probate Law category. These attorneys were selected for their significant contributions to client success and their growing influence in the legal field. The Up & Coming Lawyers/Rising Stars honor is presented annually by What's Up? Magazine, which covers Maryland's Eastern Shore and Annapolis communities. Nominees are evaluated based on peer recommendations, professional achievements, ethical standards, and community involvement. The final selection highlights those who are not only excelling in their legal practices but are also making a measurable impact on the profession and the communities they serve.

"This award is a testament to the caliber of talent we cultivate at Frost Law," said Glen Frost, Managing Partner at Frost Law.
