DENVER, CO, UNITED STATES, May 29, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Webolutions, Denver's leading digital marketing agency, has received the 2025 Breakthrough Culture Award from Hyer. This award recognizes the forward-thinking companies throughout the United States that prioritize their employees and have redefined what it means to be a people-first organization. A series of open-ended and closed-ended questions that were administered anonymously to uncover how employees truly feel about their company

The percentage of employees from each company that responded to the survey

Closed-ended queries consisted of single-answer questions. The open-ended questions allowed employees to give longer responses that provide deeper insight into their perception of their company culture and their assessment of whether it was a truly a great place to work. Open-ended responses were analyzed for the emotions contained in each answer, as well as for the presence of specific keywords and phrases associated with innovative, people-first company cultures. The anonymous nature of these surveys empowered employees to answer honestly without the bias that might occur if their responses were made public.

Companies included in Hyer's assessment ranged in size from small startups to global corporations. Breakthrough Culture Award recipients also spanned 22 distinct industry sectors. This breadth ensured that the winners of this award reflected the diversity of companies and company cultures present in our country.

Hyer is a global media company focused on highlighting the most influential company cultures and helping organizations understand how to create an environment that will deliver a positive impact on both the lives of their employees and the company's overall success.
