

Officially Licensed by Honda: Aoyama Headquarters Building Now Available as a Block Model (General Release)

HAKUSAN, JAPAN, June 2, 2025

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The iconic "Honda Aoyama Headquarters Building," which has stood as a symbol of Honda's legacy for 39 years, has been meticulously recreated as a block model. This officially licensed product by Honda is now available for general release through the vehicle-themed merchandise brand CAMSHOP.JP, operated by Faith Co., Ltd.

In December 2024, Honda announced the reconstruction of its headquarters building in Minato-ku, Tokyo, with a planned relocation in May 2025. The first-floor "Honda Welcome Plaza Aoyama," cherished by fans and car enthusiasts alike, is also set to close, marking the end of an era.

To commemorate this significant milestone, CAMSHOP.JP has developed a block model that faithfully reproduces the Aoyama Headquarters Building. Utilizing actual architectural data and photographs, the model captures the building's distinctive façade and structure with precision. Comprising 844 pieces, the completed model stands at 19.1 cm tall, 17 cm wide, and 10.7 cm deep, weighing approximately 665 grams.
