

Nimble Global Unveils Critical Guide to Vendor Management System Selection in the Digital Workforce Landscape

Nimble Global challenges buyers to demand proof of innovation.

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, June 3, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Nimble Global, a leader in international workforce compliance, has released a groundbreaking article challenging traditional Vendor Management System (VMS) selection methodologies, providing enterprise buyers with a revolutionary "Show Me" approach to due diligence.

Traditional systems built on decades-old architectures can no longer meet the demands of modern workforce management, and the VMS industry is undergoing a revolution that is leaving many behind.”

David Ballew, CEO

The comprehensive guide, authored by David Ballew, CEO of Nimble Global, exposes critical vulnerabilities in current VMS procurement strategies, revealing that 75% of organisations risk selecting outdated technologies based primarily on unverified industry reports and brand recognition.

Key Insights:

- 90% of current VMS platforms operate on decades-old technological architectures
- Most enterprise buyers rely on unaudited industry rankings for technology selection - a.k.a. 'pay-to-play' industry reports

- Modern workforce management requires AI-integrated, compliance-focused solutions

The research highlights critical evaluation criteria for VMS selection, including:

- Data protection and cross-border compliance
- Real-time analytics capabilities
- AI and machine learning integration
- Transparent pricing models

□Modernisation roadmaps

Nimble Global's guide challenges buyers to demand proof of innovation, recommending they ask vendors to demonstrate functionality in production environments rather than accepting marketing claims.

Urgent Call to Action for Enterprise Buyers

The article concludes with a provocative question: "Do you really need a VMS in today's world?" – urging organisations to critically reassess their workforce management technologies.
