With showrooms strategically located in Carmel, Palo Alto, and Sand City, Carmel Stone Imports is meeting increasing regional demand for high-quality interior and exterior surfaces. This expansion enables homeowners, builders, and designers throughout the Bay Area to explore a wide array of imported and domestic stone materials, including marble, quartzite, porcelain, and tile, all under one roof.

Porcelain slabs are changing how people approach both modern and timeless design”

“California’s design and construction landscape is shifting toward long-lasting, natural finishes,” said Robbie Robinson, Owner of Carmel Stone Imports. “We’re seeing a rise in thoughtful renovations and new builds that prioritize durability, sustainability, and aesthetic value. These expanded showrooms allow us to better support that trend while remaining accessible to our customers throughout Northern California.”

Localized Services for Bay Area Design and Construction

Carmel Stone Imports is known for its extensive and carefully curated inventory of high-end natural and engineered stone. The company imports directly from quarries and manufacturers across Europe, South America, and Asia, ensuring competitive pricing and a wide selection of premium materials.

The Bay Area expansion offers a localized hub for homeowners, interior designers, and contractors to explore and source:

- Natural stone slabs such as marble, limestone, quartzite, and soapstone
- Engineered surfaces including porcelain slabs and Neolith sintered stone
- Decorative and structural tiles in a variety of finishes and styles
- Outdoor pavers, mosaics, and architectural stone features

Each showroom features on-site experts who assist with material selection, design compatibility, and product specifications to ensure optimal results for projects ranging from kitchen renovations to large-scale commercial developments.

Industry Trends and Market Relevance

A recent report from the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) highlights the continued growth in remodeling and custom home construction across California, particularly in the San Jose, San Francisco, and East Bay corridors. These market conditions have prompted a growing need for reliable suppliers of surface materials that meet both functional and aesthetic expectations.

Carmel Stone Imports' expanded Bay Area presence provides a strategic solution for:

- Increased demand for sustainable building materials
- Shorter lead times on imported stone due to local inventory availability
- Enhanced showroom experiences for clients needing tactile, visual engagement with materials

"We understand that selecting stone is a tactile process," said Robinson. "Our showrooms are designed to give people the opportunity to truly experience the texture, color, and movement of each material before making a decision."
