What's Been Driving The Automotive Centre Console Market's Growth?

A pivotal factor significantly contributing to the growth of the automotive center console market is the rapidly growing demand for electric vehicles. Safe, secure, and robust center control systems have become an integral part of an electric car. Centre consoles in electric cars are used extensively for navigation and touch controls. For instance, an article published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, a USA-based unit of the United States Department of Labor in February 2023, predicts that electric vehicle sales in the United States are expected to reach 40% of total passenger car sales by 2030. More optimistic projections foresee electric vehicle sales surpassing 50% by 2030. Thus, with the increasing demand for electric vehicles, the automotive center console market will be further driven.
