Shane Reeves, chief executive officer of TwelveStone Health Partners. “We are honored to serve the people of southern Kentucky and partner with local providers to ensure that high-quality infusion care is both accessible and patient focused.”

This is TwelveStone’s 23rd location, joining existing Infusion Centers in Tennessee (Bellevue, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Memphis-Germantown, Mt. Juliet, Murfreesboro, North Nashville and Spring Hill,) Georgia (Canton, Cumming, Duluth, Lithonia, Peachtree City and Smyrna,) Virginia (Norfolk, Richmond, Roanoke, Stone Springs, Sterling and Woodbridge) and Kentucky (Lexington, Louisville.)

“The Bowling Green opening reflects strong demand for outpatient infusion services in southern Kentucky,” said Joey Alvarez, sales territory manager at TwelveStone Health Partners. “We’re excited to grow our footprint and collaborate with local specialty care providers to ensure patients receive timely, convenient, high-quality care.”

TwelveStone Infusion patients receive high-quality care in private treatment rooms supported by certified clinicians. Free Wi-Fi, snacks and drinks are also offered to patients and family members, which creates a positive patient experience and personalized attention, validated by more than 1,500 five-star Google reviews.

“We know how important it is for patients to feel comfortable and supported throughout their treatment journey,” shared Bettina Witherspoon, nurse manager, TwelveStone Health Partners Bowling Green. “Our new Bowling Green location offers the same welcoming environment and clinical excellence that our patients and providers have come to expect from TwelveStone locations in four states.”
