What Is Driving The Abrasives Market Growth?

One key driver propelling the abrasives market growth is the surge in the electrical vehicle EV industry. Electric vehicles, which operate using an electric motor and charged at electric stations rather than by internal combustion, has skyrocketed in popularity. This shift towards electric motoring has been coupled with an increasing need to populate the worldwide road network with EV charging stations.

As the electric car industry shows no signs of slowing down, the demand for stainless steel and the abrasives required to finish it is expected to increase in the coming years. Almost all stainless-steel applications require at least one abrasive treatment to finish it before it can be employed in any substantial way. For instance, every stainless-steel weld necessitates some level of grinding and polishing.

Which Companies Are Leading In The Abrasives Market?

Leading companies in the abrasives market include Robert Bosch GmbH, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, Saint-Gobain Abrasives Inc., Fujimi Incorporated, Henkel AG & CO. KGAA, Tyrolit India Tool Pvt. Ltd., and Asahi Diamond Industrial Co. Ltd. among others.
