

Legal Considerations for Remote Freelancers Launching Businesses

RENO, NV, UNITED STATES, June 6, 2025

/EINPresswire.com/ -- With millions of Americans now embracing freelancing and freelance businesses, understanding the legal intricacies of forming a business entity has become more crucial than ever. The freelance workforce is experiencing a massive surge in interest as the desire to be one's own boss and work flexible hours is advertised heavily online and across all social media platforms.

As more people turn to freelance work, they must educate themselves about the legal complexities involved to ensure success and avoid costly surprises.”

*Ken LaMance, LegalMatch's
General Counsel.*

While the potential for comfortable success is grand, so is the potential for legal issues that can arise if a solid business structure and plan are not mapped out ahead of time. Legal factors that a new freelancing entrepreneur will need to be aware of include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Choosing the right business structure (e.g., sole proprietorship, LLC, S-corp)
- Drafting legally-sound contracts
- Whether employees will be added in the near future or

down the road

- Protecting intellectual property rights
- Understanding self-employment taxes and deductions
- Complying with data privacy regulations

Freelancers who are starting their own businesses are urged to seek online legal resources like LegalMatch.com, the first ever attorney-client matching platform. LegalMatch can match individuals with experienced business lawyers for free while offering a robust online Law Library filled with educational articles on a multitude of legal topics, including business formation, business law, and more.
