National Donut Day, first established in 1938 by The Salvation Army in Chicago, pays tribute to the "Donut Lassies" – volunteer women who served donuts and coffee to soldiers on the front lines during World War I. The Donut Lassies served up to 9,000 donuts daily to American soldiers during WWI and WWII and their original recipe can be found on the Intermountain Division website at imsalvationarmy.org.

“We're thrilled to partner with LaMar's Donuts again this year,” says Major Nesan Kistan, Divisional Commander of The Salvation Army in the Intermountain Division. “Their generous support allows us to keep this beloved tradition going – a reminder that we're still serving on the front lines of society.”

"We invite everyone to take part in honoring good food, history, community, and compassion by having a LaMar's donut and supporting The Salvation Army's mission on National Donut Day," says Matt Joslin, LaMar's President/COO.
