Recognising Leadership in Environmental Practice

The 2025 Environmental Awards highlight how organisations are taking concrete steps to reduce their environmental impact while contributing to broader sustainability goals. From the implementation of low-carbon technologies and comprehensive environmental management systems to research that informs public policy, the winners and finalists have shown how businesses can align operational priorities with environmental responsibility.

What distinguishes this year's recipients is their commitment to evidence-led approaches. Their work reflects not only a desire to contribute to environmental outcomes, but a clear focus on transparency, data-driven strategy, and collaboration with stakeholders and communities.

As sustainability continues to become a key area of strategic importance, these organisations provide examples of how purposeful, well-integrated environmental initiatives can drive both internal improvements and wider positive outcomes.
