BRADFORD, ONTARIO, CANADA, June 11, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As the HVAC industry faces a major shift in refrigerant standards, Parlay HVAC Solutions is proud to announce its partnership with leading industry media to sponsor an urgent and timely webinar: "How Contractors Can Navigate the R-454B Shortage." The live session will take place on June 12, 2025, at 2:00 PM EDT, with on-demand access available for registrants following the event.

We are deeply invested in helping our industry partners prepare for the evolving refrigerant landscape. We understand how quickly things are changing and how critical it is for contractors to adapt.”

Ryan Schlarb, Owner of Parlay HVAC Solutions.

With the U.S. phasing out R-410A in new HVAC systems as of January 1, 2025, and Canada expected to follow suit by January 1, 2026, the transition to A2L refrigerants like R-454B and R-32 is creating widespread concern across the sector. One of the most pressing issues? A rapidly growing shortage of R-454B in cylinders, just as contractors ramp up for the busy summer season.

This must-attend event will break down:

- The driving forces behind the R-454B shortage
- What Canadian and U.S. contractors can expect in the months ahead?
- Actionable steps contractors can take today to stay ahead of regulations and supply issues

Safety tips for working with R-454B and R-32 in the field

"Parlay HVAC Solutions is deeply invested in helping our industry partners prepare for the evolving refrigerant landscape," said Ryan Schlarb, Owner of Parlay HVAC Solutions. "With over 75 years of combined experience in HVAC innovation, we understand how quickly things are changing and how critical it is for contractors to adapt. This webinar is a key step in staying informed and ahead of the curve."
