consulting firm, has announced the opening of a new office in Portland, Maine. This expansion marks a major milestone in the company's continued growth as it expands to meet rising demand for IT consulting and project management services.

Located at 2 Monument Square in the heart of downtown, the new Portland office extends ProInfoNet's regional footprint and positions the company to better serve clients across New England and beyond. It will support ongoing work in healthcare connectivity, broadband development, and network infrastructure—sectors where the company continues to see growing demand for consulting services.

“We've built a strong foundation through years of trusted partnerships and measurable results,” said Jim Rogers, President and CEO of ProInfoNet. “Opening a second office is a natural next step in our growth. We're excited to expand our reach and continue delivering high-impact consulting services across Maine and New England.”

The Portland office is now open and operational, with plans to expand the team and service offerings throughout 2025.
