George Thompson

George, the brother of owner and certified general contractor Matt Thompson, began his construction journey at the age of 14 alongside their late father, who built hotels throughout the Midwest. His lifelong passion and hands-on experience span over ten states and include everything from foundational builds to full-scale residential remodels—including the complete renovation of Matt and Serena Thompson's Los Angeles home in 2016.

"George is one of the people I can trust most in life," said Matt. "He's ethical, responsible, always learning, and sets a standard the team respects. He's an integral part of what makes Construction Corps not just successful—but principled."
