

Capstone Plumbing Adds New Service Plumber to Support Customer Demand

Capstone Plumbing introduces a new plumber, Steven Larson, who blends hands-on expertise with a strong local connection.

CAVE CREEK, AZ, UNITED STATES, June 16, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Capstone Plumbing has announced the addition of Steven Larson as a service plumber to support the growing needs of its residential and light commercial customers. Larson brings over seven years of plumbing experience, previously serving clients in the Baltimore area. His return to Arizona marks a new chapter in his career with a locally operated company committed to quality service.

Experienced Background in Residential Plumbing

Steven Larson began his plumbing career in Maryland, where he worked as a service plumber for nearly a decade. Originally from Cave Creek, AZ, Larson played college lacrosse at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County (UMBC) before entering the plumbing trade. His background combines technical knowledge with a strong work ethic developed through athletics and hands-on field experience.

Commitment to Quality and Customer-Focused Service

Larson is motivated by a commitment to helping customers resolve plumbing issues efficiently and effectively. He has a clear focus on delivering consistent, high-standard service while building positive relationships with clients. His decision to return to Arizona was driven by a desire to reconnect with the community where he grew up and continue his career with a company that prioritizes professionalism and reliable workmanship.

Personal Interests That Support a Hands-On Career

Outside of work, Larson enjoys being outdoors, hiking, fishing, and running alongside his two springer spaniels. His personality brings an approachable and light-hearted energy to the job site. Known among peers for occasionally talking to himself while working, Larson maintains a sharp attention to detail and methodical approach during service calls.
